The Commonwealth of Massachusetts does not recognize company issued insurance ID cards as valid proof of insurance. Within the Commonwealth, your proof of insurance is the presence of license plates on your vehicle. Your insurance purchase is reported electronically to the Registry of Motor Vehicles. Should your policy ever lapse and not be replaced, the Registry of Motor Vehicles will initiate the process to retrieve your license plates. These ID cards will not prevent that process, nor will they serve as proof of insurance in the event of a traffic stop.

Outside of Massachusetts, most states use insurance company issued ID cards to verify insurance coverage. Should you ever be requested to produce proof of insurance while traveling outside of Massachusetts, these insurance cards may be helpful.

Please note that Compulsory Bodily Injury to Others only covers you when you are in Massachusetts. If Compulsory Bodily Injury to Others is the only coverage you have purchased, you will not be covered when driving outside of the Commonwealth.
